

One Poem

One Poem of Love
Can begin to heal
A lifetime of scars
And bruises
Inflicted by the uncaring
And the unknowing.

One Poem of Light
Can cast away the shadows
Of the self-enlightened
And self-important,
Who find it noble
To darken others' counsel
With words without knowledge.

One Poem
Can inspire the indifferent,
Give hope to the despairing,
And remind a dying world
Just how much life remains therein.

© 2004 by Robert E. Blackwell